He signed up for the program which provides supplements and a book with menus and recipes. After 12 weeks of adhering to the program, there was no change in his diabetic condition. Also, a request for help in mediating a settlement was received from another person who was dissatisfied with the program. After reviewing the issues with the DC, he agreed to fully reimburse both parties and they have withdrawn their complaints. Ms. DiFillippo moved to dismiss the complaint. Dr. Lurie contacted the doctor who said he was out of town and the records were held up by his staff person. Dr. Lurie contacted the applicant who had hired a mass-media company that put up the website without his knowledge. The company sent a letter in which they acknowledge their fault. Dr. Lurie felt that the schools should submit something in writing as to what they would allow and what is to be accomplished under such a program. An attorney's request for the Board's public records regarding SB 198 was discussed. Louis stated that in this particular case, there was nothing derogatory or embarrassing in the records.
